

Abstract ID: 18

Presentation Type: Poster

RELATIONSHIP PROSTATE CANCER AND SEXUAL ACTIVITY

Submission Author: Samira Shahbazzadegan

Samira Shahbazzadegan¹

1. Assistant Professor, Department of Midwifery, School of Nursing and Midwifery, Ardabil University of Medical Sciences, Ardabil, Iran

Background and Aim : Although prostate cancer (PCa) is the most common cancer type in men, a replaceable risk factor has not yet been established. This study aimed was assessed the relationship between the sexual activity and prostate cancer incidence.

Methods : This study was conducted by searching keyword Prostate cancer, sexually activity in databases.

Results : study provided the strongest evidence to date of a beneficial role of ejaculation in prevention of PCa, a disease for which relatively little is understood about etiology generally and knowledge of modifiable risk factors is particularly scant

Conclusion : studies showed that beneficial role of more frequent ejaculation throughout adult life in the etiology of PCa.

Keywords : prostate cancer , sexual activity